Biography

Kathryn is an award-winning artist with a BA in Fine Art. She lived in many places before settling in San Diego, starting with her home state, Alaska. From ghost towns to large cities, she has experienced various countries & cultures. This variety is reflected in her art with her interest in many genres and media.

Being mix-handed deeply influences her art, thinking and reactions.

As a conceptual artist, she uses found objects to imbue her artwork with symbolism and meaning. She makes dresses from recycled materials, and also paints figures, plein air, whimsical and scientific artworks.

Painting from life is amongst her favorite genres for several reasons: she gets to capture the energy in the moment, painting in the community--experiencing a sense of fellowship while immersed in beautiful places.

Active in numerous galleries, Kathryn's work hangs in private collections all over the world, as well as in a large public collection in Idaho.
